NEW DIVISION FIGHTING Berlin Declares Attacks By Enemies In South Beaten Back

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—The German high command announced today that renewed heavy Soviet attacks on the southern sector of the Eastern Front had failed.

KUBYSHEV, Dec. 5.—Capture of 90 villages by Soviet troops pursuing shattered German forces on the southern sector of the Eastern Front was announced by the Soviet high command today.

This claim was made in a new war communique while reports from the Moscow Front said Red army defense forces there struck three new hammer blows against the Nazis massed around the capital.

The new war communique, stating that fighting continued on all fronts throughout the night, added:

"Russians pursuing the enemy on the southern front in one day captured 90 villages, 53 guns and 58 mortars."

"A unit on the Central Front destroyed 70 tanks, 10 guns and 1,300 men."

According to the Communist newspaper Pravda, Russian troops on the Southern Front recaptured the town of Matveev-Kurgan on the Southern Russian Front, seizing "much valuable booty."

Matveev-Kurgan, which was taken by forces under Commander Egorov, is a mining town in the lower part of the Donetz basin north of Taganrog and southeast of Stalino.

On the Moscow Front, Russian forces unleashed powerful counter-attacks on the Klin, Volokolamsk and Tula sectors.

Threat To Moscow

But this, afternoon the newspaper Pravda said a "serious threat" to Moscow now has arisen along the Tula highway.

According to this account, several enemy tanks are advancing along the highway and a third German division already has appeared on the Tula Front, 110 miles south of Moscow.

Pravda added that fierce fighting was in progress between Russian defenders and German motorized infantry which pierced the "R" area.

Meanwhile, the first mention of fighting in the region of Solnechnogorsk, 12 miles south of Klin on the northwestern approaches

OHIO EXPECTS MERCURY FALL

Heat Records Established Throughout State; 69 High In Cleveland

By International News Service
Ohio's Indian Summer, which has smashed heat records throughout the state, drew to a close today as forecasters predicted a cool front would move in from the west.

Today, however, was another mild, humid day, except for the extreme west portion of the state. But temperatures such as smashed records in most Ohio cities were not expected.

The mercury climaxed a nine-day flight into springlike temperatures.

Circleville's temperatures in the last 24 hours were as balmy as early fall, high Thursday being 65 and low Friday 50 degrees.

EAST RINGGOLD RESIDENCE HIT BY $200 BLAZE

Damage estimated at $200 resulted when fire broke out in the residence of Mrs. Alice Cookson, East Ringgold, Friday about 11 a. m.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise, sheriff's officers, and volunteers worked about an hour before the flames were brought under control, residents of the village keeping the booster tank on the rural fire truck filled.

The fire, which the fire chief said started from a defective chimney, began in the attic and spread along shingles under a tin roof.

The house is occupied by Mrs. Cookson and her son, Charles.

Time Limit Placed On Notes Almost Expires

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Great Britain today warned that expiration of a time limit in notes dispatched to Finland, Hungary and Romania is only a few hours distant, but cautioned against assumption that an automatic declaration of war would follow passage of the time limit.

Earlier, the London wartime censor had passed dispatches hinting that unless some unexpected change develops Britain might declare war on all three nations which are cooperating with Nazi Germany in the war against Russia.

An official statement declared: "At the end of last week, His Majesty's Government addressed notes to Finland, Hungary and Romania, the purpose of which was to avert further deterioration of relations between Great Britain and those powers."

"It is not now, at the moment, possible to make any statement on the contents of those notes, save to say they called for a reply not later than tonight."

(Editor's Note: It was emphasized that the notes were not ultimatums.)

"At the present moment, no reply has been received from any one of these three governments, and it is safe to assume that the British government will continue to await these replies and through failure to receive these replies it should not be assumed that a declaration of war would follow."

"But if no replies have been received by midnight, a new phase will arise and the British government will consider this new phase in consultation with the Dominions and other allies."

"The notes were sent through the good offices of the State Department (apparently in Washington) and various ministers of the countries concerned."

"It is expected that the replies (Continued on Page Eight)"

EAST INDIES IN FEAR THAT WAR WILL BEGIN SOON

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Dec. 5.—Last-minute preparations for an emergency were rushed today as the Netherlands East Indies focused attention on the Japanese-American negotiations in Washington.

One thousand police reserves were mustered into the general police force to provide assistance in the event of a crisis.

The Navy Department announced that the fleet was at full wartime strength and said no new recruiting of sea forces would be necessary because a large number of conscripts and reservists already are in service.

The fleet has been patrolling the East Indies territorial waters and protecting merchant shipping in the Far East, the communique said.

Batavia remained calm. But the public avidly snatched up newspapers and listened to broadcasts.

POLICEMAN'S WIFE CAN SHOOT PISTOL; HE KNOWS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Living with a policeman has made Mrs. Violet Maurer quick on the trigger, it appeared today.

Awakened by a noise at her bedroom window last night, Mrs. Maurer reached under her pillow for a revolver, fired twice and shot her husband, Police Sergeant Edward E. Maurer, 35, once in the left knee.

Maurer, returning from work, had misplaced the keys and started to crawl through the window, not wanting to awaken his wife.

4,554 ACRES OF FEDERAL LANDS OFF TAX LISTS

Tax Department Informs Auditor To Abide By Government Plan

COUNTY LOSES $6,694.58

Farm Area Used For Public Purposes, U. S. Office Declares

A notice to drop 4,554.68 acres of federal lands in Pickaway County from the tax duplicate was received Friday by Auditor Forrest Short from the Board of Tax Appeals, Department of Taxation of Ohio.

Through the transaction, the county will lose $6,694.58, including back taxes for 1938, 1939 and 1940. Total amount of tax remitted is $10,851.76, but the government, according to the new setup, has agreed to pay $4,157.18 in lieu of the taxes to the various subdivisions of the townships in which the land is located. The plan also provides, Auditor Short said, that the government continue to make payments to the various subdivisions in lieu of taxes. The money, however, will be paid direct to the subdivisions and not through the county.

The land was exempted on the grounds that it is being "used exclusively for public purpose," although such is not the case in Pickaway County, Auditor Short pointed out.

Under the new plan, 1,562.16 acres of land in Perry Township will be dropped from the county duplicate, taxes amounting to $5,025.87 will be remitted and the government has agreed to pay $1,511.42 to the Perry Township subdivisions.

In other townships, the provisions are as follows:

Deercreek Township: 791.74 acres dropped, $1,207.76 in taxes remitted, $560.42 paid by the government; Wayne Township: 846.82 acres dropped, $2,669.62 in taxes remitted, $879.02 paid by the government; Jackson: 771.86 acres dropped, $1,485.77 in taxes remitted, $765.62 paid by the government; Muhlenberg: 314 acres dropped, $278.47 in taxes remitted, $265.20 paid by the government; Monroe: 271.10 acres dropped, $184.27 in taxes remitted; $175.50 paid by the government.

Most of the land is in the Scioto Farms Rural Resettlement project area.

Fire apparatus was summoned from Brookville, Phillipsburg, Arcanum, Greenville, and Lewisburg before the blaze was brought under control and homes nearby were saved.

BRITISH READY FOR NEXT ROUND IN AFRICAN WAR

LONDON, Dec. 5.—British military authorities said today that imperial forces are ranging through the battlefields of Libya, mopping up disabled enemy tank units and "generally leaving everything tidy for the next round."

As far as the main battle is concerned, it was stated, the recent lull still is believed to be in effect, although there were indications of resumption of major hostilities in the near future.

Military authorities in London said the British still hold Capuzzo in Libya and dominate the town of Sollum in northwestern Egypt near the Libyan frontier.

A report that the British had withdrawn to a line running from El Gobi to Sidi Omar was denied. Authorities said the British were engaged in mopping up operations well to the north of that line.

In one of their surprise attacks on enemy armored columns in the Sidi Azeiz area yesterday, authorities said, the British killed 40 Germans, captured four guns and (Continued on Page Eight)

TOKYO, Dec. 5.—At the very moment Japan's reply to President Roosevelt's recent inquiries was being handed in at the White House, Japan today formally disclaimed any territorial ambitions in East Asia or elsewhere.

The Japanese government also has replied to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's memorandum on the Far Eastern crisis, it was learned.

A full and authoritative statement on Japan's position, possibly paralleling the note presented in Washington, was made by Tomokazu Hori, new chief foreign office spokesman, who earlier said that Japanese-American conversations were making "progress" and would continue.

"Assuming the correctness of press reports regarding Mr. Hull's statement (accusing Japan of planning aggression), we are amazed to find in existence such a misunderstanding of our policy by the American government," Hori said.

PARIS, (via Berlin), Dec. 5.—The German commander-in-chief of the Paris area ordered imposition of a curfew on the 10th arrondissement today as a result of a new attempt to assassinate a German officer during the nightly Paris blackout.

The new restrictions forced thousands of persons to spend the night away from their homes. Police stations, schools and hotels were full to overflowing with persons seeking shelter.

Hundreds of persons arrested for violating the curfew order were released.

MINOR LEAGUE CONFAB ONE OF LITTLE ACTIVITY

By Lawton Carver

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 5 —Unless something pops here today out of a clear blue sky trading action calculated to have a bearing on the Major League pennant races must develop at Chicago next week when the Majors go into annual session. With at least a half dozen clubs determined to strengthen and overtake the Brooklyn Dodgers and resurgent St. Louis Cardinals in the National League and the spread-eagled New York Yankees in the American nothing was done here to indicate anything beyond the obvious, viz:

The Dodgers or Cardinals will win the National League pennant next year and will have to beat the Yankees in the World Series.

The annual convention of the Minor Leagues, which comes to a close tonight, was expected to be one of the liveliest in years, and yet was one of the dullest up to now. Most of the trading was strictly within the minors, which turned over an aggregate of more talent value of one kind and another than all the majors put together. The majors drive hard bargains.

It took six hours for the New York Giants to regain Outfielder Hank Leiber in exchange for Pitcher Bob Bowman in a deal with the Chicago Cubs early yesterday morning. And that was the one Major League trade consummated. There were some scattered sales, recalls, purchases for transfer to minor league clubs, signing of free agents and business of that inconsequential category, but very little to bring out the scare heads.

Ensign Wayne Morris Seeks Wings

WAYNE Morris, recent star of "I Wanted Wings," became a member of Uncle Sam's Navy in May, 1941, when he was appointed to the rank of Ensign.

When asked what he thought of the United States Navy, Morris said, "I think every man who is considering joining a military service should look into the 'chance of a lifetime' which the Navy and Naval Reserve offer to get into the big-pay field of the future—aviation. In the Navy you can attend the finest flight training schools in the world, and receive instruction from Navy pilots who introduced dive bombing, aircraft carriers and catapult take-offs to the rest of the world. Also, there are opportunities in Naval Aviation for men who don't want to fly. They can be trained as aviation machinists, metallurgists, photographers, observers, or they can receive instruction in many other trades. It's a great life in the Navy."

COAST TEAMS TO MEET STRONG GRID OPPONENTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5—Far Western football has its last chance to rise and shine tomorrow when three coast teams clash with the peers of the Southwestern and Southeastern Conferences.

Odds-makers quoted Texas A. & M. 10 to 8 over Washington State at Tacoma; Mississippi State 2 to 1 over the University of San Francisco; and Texas 2 to 1 over Oregon at Austin.

Southern California is a 10 to 7 favorite over its cross-town rival, U.C.L.A. It's a grudge game with the Trojans holding the upper hand, despite a miserable season.

The University of Hawaii Rainbows were favored to down their Oregon visitors from Willamette at Honolulu by two touchdowns while Arizona may upset Utah at Tucson.

Only two other games of importance remain unplayed. U.C.L.A. will wind up the bruin season at Jacksonville December 20 against the University of Florida and California plays host to Georgia Tech in a "consolation bowl" game at Berkeley the day after Christmas.

BIG GAMES ON CAGE SCHEDULE

Greenfield McClain Comes To Circleville For League Affray

Plenty of basketball is on the schedule Friday evening for Circleville and Pickaway County fans, with Greenfield invading Circleville for a South Central Ohio League contest, and many of the county teams being in action.

Greenfield, as usual, owns a powerhouse paced by tall Don Grate, and the Tigers will have to go all-out in an effort to put a victory on the proper side of the slate.

Starting lineups are expected to be:

Circleville Greenfield
Valentine ... F ... Davis
Woods ... F ... Elberfeld
Moorehead ... C ... Grate
Geib ... G ... Orr
Moon ... G ... Robinson

Referee: Grandie, University of Cincinnati

Scene: C.A.C. gym with reserve game at 7:15.

Up at Ashville, Pickaway Pirates and the Ashville Bronchos will tangle in a big game, the result of which will go a long way in deciding the county title. Morris Taylor's lads have been playing good defensive ball, and will probably be the toughest defensive squad Ashville has played this year. On the other hand, Dick Carter has a powerhouse offensively, one which may break the Pirate zone for enough points to knock off the contest.

Williamsport goes over to Perry, Walnut travels to Jackson, New Holland meets Washington in the Circleville High gym and Scioto is the guest of Monroe. Salt Creek is scheduled against Madison Mills tonight in a non-league game, and Darby takes on a toughy when it travels to London.

GREENBERG OUT OF ARMY AFTER EIGHT MONTHS

FORT CUSTER, Mich., Dec. 5 —"Hank" Greenberg, former Detroit Tiger outfielder, was to return to civilian life today after serving almost eight months in Uncle Sam's Army.

The two-time winner of the most valuable American League player award was the first Major Leaguer to be inducted under the Selective Service Act last spring. Coming just at the beginning of the season, his entrance into the Army chopped his income from $50,000 a year to $21 a month.

At Monday's parade, the rangy right-hander received a certificate of service. Officers already had classed him as a "good soldier," pointing out that Greenberg advanced to the rank of sergeant.

Although there is much conjecture as to whether he will return to the diamond—and if so will he again don the Tigers uniform—Hank doesn't say. Recently, however, he said jokingly he was only sure he'd "not go on relief."

Greenberg led the American League in batting in 1940, and his induction was severely felt by Detroit during the last baseball season.

As was the case when he was inducted last May 7, Greenberg today faced a battery of newspaper and newsreel cameramen.

Athletic Club Held Close In Opening Half, But Turns On In Final Sessions

Circleville Athletic Club sharpshooters, playing a brilliant game against a strong Newark team, won 36-21 Thursday evening in the local gym after being held to a 13-13 deadlock at halftime.

The final two cantos were all in the C.A.C.'s favor, with Cropp and Gregg turning in a strong offensive game to tally 18 points between them.

Newark brought a fine quintet to Circleville, a fast-breaking offensive being used to get the ball into position for scoring, but the experienced C. A. C. lads were equal to the occasion.

MINOR LEAGUE CONFAB ONE OF LITTLE ACTIVITY

By Lawton Carver

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 5 —Unless something pops here today out of a clear blue sky trading action calculated to have a bearing on the Major League pennant races must develop at Chicago next week when the Majors go into annual session. With at least a half dozen clubs determined to strengthen and overtake the Brooklyn Dodgers and resurgent St. Louis Cardinals in the National League and the spread-eagling New York Yankees in the American nothing was done here to indicate anything beyond the obvious, viz:

The Dodgers or Cardinals will win the National League pennant next year and will have to beat the Yankees in the World Series.

The annual convention of the Minor Leagues, which comes to a close tonight, was expected to be one of the liveliest in years, and yet was one of the dullest up to now. Most of the trading was strictly within the minors, which turned over an aggregate of more talent value of one kind and another than all the majors put together. The majors drive hard bargains.

It took six hours for the New York Giants to regain Outfielder Hank Leiber in exchange for Pitcher Bob Bowman in a deal with the Chicago Cubs early yesterday morning. And that was the one Major League trade consummated. There were some scattered sales, recalls, purchases for transfer to minor league clubs, signing of free agents and business of that inconsequential category, but very little to bring out the scare heads.

LEADERS OF BIG TEN CONFER ON JAVELIN TOPIC

By Leo Fischer

CHICAGO, Dec. 5—All the Big Ten faculty advisers—All the Big Ten coaches—All the Big Ten athletic directors—All the Big Ten publicity men—They're here today for their annual two-day meetings—and so far as any one can ascertain, the big topic of discussion will be:

"Shall the javelin throw be eliminated from the outdoor track meet?"

A twenty-four-hour search by our operatives has failed to reveal anything of greater import. There is no Chicago "problem," the matter of draft and military service was disposed of at the summer session, football cards have been drawn up for three years in advance, but the matter of "to jave or not to jave" is still undecided.

It seems that judges and non-combatant athletes at the Big Ten meet are beginning to weary of the constant threat of falling spears. It may be just an event on a track program to some people, but to any person who has ever heard of those steel-tipped two-pound stickers whistling past his ear it's a matter of more serious hue.

It is unlikely that anything more important will develop from the confab. Naturally there will be some discussion as to a possible successor to Bob Zuppke as head football coach at Illinois, but nothing will be done along this line—although the chances are that the lobby will be cluttered up with potential candidates trying to intercept Athletic Director Doug Mills.

TIGERS CAPTAIN HONORED

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 5 —Robert L. Peters Jr., of Kingsport, Tenn., held possession today of the John Prentiss Poe Cup, awarded each year to a Tiger football player on the basis of sportsmanship, playing ability and influence. Peters was captain and halfback of the Princeton eleven.

BODIES OF MEN LOST IN RIVER BEING HUNTED

Five Or Seven Missing
After Collapse Of Big Section

EIGHT OTHERS DEAD

New Connecticut Bridge
Scene Of Tragedy;
Divers Called

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 5 — Police and rescue squads today searched debris-littered waters of the Connecticut River for five or seven workmen who were still missing following collapse of a 160-foot section of the new $4,500,000 bridge being built between Hartford and East Hartford, which brought death to eight other workers.

Sixteen other workmen, who also were plunged into the Connecticut River 100 feet below the bridge level, were in Hartford hospitals.

Seven of the victims' bodies were taken from the river. The eighth, William J. Ward, 60, of Waterford, Conn., died in a hospital.

The other dead, as listed by Hartford police, were:

Leon Vollinger, 35, West Hartford, Mass.

Joseph Napoleon Morin, 39, Lewiston, Me.

Frank E. Place, 57, Hartford.

Nicholas Logan, 39, New York.

William R. Lipsey, 34, Flushing, N. Y.

Jerome McClain, 42, Middletown, Conn.

Martin Ridgeck, 43, New York.

Divers Called

In addition to state troopers, firemen and Hartford police, divers from the U. S. Navy submarine base at New London, Conn., were called to the scene searching among twisted girders in the river for the missing men.

The bridge collapsed as a 176-ton crane with a 100-foot boom was about to swing a heavy girder into place on the bridge's superstructure about 120 feet from the Hartford end.

At that point supporting the bridge was a false pier of piling, with movable jack columns to act as jacks. The pier was to support the structure until the girders had been riveted into place over the river to a concrete pier 272 feet from shore.

The huge girder had been carried onto the bridge on a track laid over girders already in place. With the workmen hovering about to connect the crane hook, the crane and bridge began to sway. Suddenly the bridge, false pier and crane all fell into the river, carrying with them the group of workmen. The Hartford end of the bridge was torn loose from its permanent concrete pier at the edge of the river.

With an ear-splitting crash, the girders fell. Bystanders summoned police and firemen who worked their way out on the fallen bridge wreckage to aid the injured struggling in the water. Other persons sped to the wreckage in small boats and picked up some of the injured.

Kiwanians Honor Grid Team, Hear Paul Brown At Monday Eve Banquet

All arrangements have been completed for the Kiwanis Club's annual football banquet to be conducted Monday evening in the banquet room of the Elk's Home. Kiwanians, their ladies, the football team, coaches and some invited guests will be present to hear an address by Coach Paul E. Brown of Ohio State University and to view movies of some of Ohio State's football games.

The banquet will begin at 6:30 o'clock, and admission will be by ticket only, the attendance being limited because of lack of available space.

For the last several years the Kiwanis Club has honored the high school football team and this year's event promises to be the outstanding one of the series.

Coach Brown was born in Norwalk in 1908. When he was in the sixth grade, his family moved to Massillon, and he went through high school there. Despite his slight stature, he became an outstanding athlete, winning letters in football, baseball, basketball and track.

After being graduated from high school at the age of 16, he entered Ohio State and was a member of the freshman football and basketball teams, but soon found that his 140 pounds were not enough for Western Conference competition.

Went To Miami

Consequently, he transferred to Miami University at Oxford, where he played quarterback in football and outfield in baseball for two seasons. At Miami he gained quite a reputation as a field general and a forward passer. He wound up his college career by throwing three touchdown passes to defeat Wittenberg.

After receiving his diploma at the age of 20 he entered the coaching field, accepting a position at Severn, a prep school for the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis.

He remained there through two very successful seasons, winning 15 games and losing but one. It was only natural that when Massillon High School authorities began looking for a new coach, they picked Paul Brown.

The very name of Massillon is nearly synonymous with football now, but the situation is a far cry from that when Paul Brown took over in 1932. The athletic physical plant and equipment was run down; spirit was low, and the team had been a loser for several seasons. He immediately launched the program which has made Massillon a by-word wherever football is played.

In 1932, his team won six, lost three, and tied one game. The next year it won eight of 10, and the third season, nine out of 10. In the following six seasons, Massillon was undefeated and untied five times, and lost one and tied one in the other year. His total record at Massillon was 81 victories, six defeats and two ties.

Stepping into the Ohio State picture in 1941, he was faced with the necessity of living up to an amazing quantity of publicity and public support which had preceded his appointment. Football spirit was at a low ebb following a disappointing season, and the material on hand was rather skimpy.

Season Fine One

Making no promises other than that Ohio State would have a well-drilled, fighting team, he went to work to install his system and style of play. The result was a very successful season which saw the Bucks score victories over Missouri, Southern California, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Wisconsin, and Illinois. They lost only to Northwestern and wound up the season in a blaze of glory by fighting a favored Michigan team to a great 20-20 tie.

Paul is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, which has no chapter at Ohio State. He is married and has two sons, Robin and Michael. Mrs. Brown will accompany the coach to Circleville.

Hanson Baldwin, and many others.

BODIES OF MEN LOST IN RIVER BEING HUNTED

Five Or Seven Missing After Collapse Of Big Section

EIGHT OTHERS DEAD

New Connecticut Bridge Scene Of Tragedy; Divers Called

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 5 — Police and rescue squads today searched debris-littered waters of the Connecticut River for five or seven workmen who were still missing following collapse of a 160-foot section of the new $4,500,000 bridge being built between Hartford and East Hartford, which brought death to eight other workmen.

Sixteen other workmen, who also were plunged into the Connecticut River 100 feet below the bridge level, were in Hartford hospitals.

Seven of the victims' bodies were taken from the river. The eighth, William J. Ward, 60, of Waterford, Conn., died in a hospital.

The other dead, as listed by Hartford police, were:

Leon Vollinger, 35, West Hartford, Mass.

Joseph Napoleon Morin, 39, Lewiston, Me.

Frank E. Place, 57, Hartford.

Nicholas Logan, 39, New York.

William R. Lipsey, 34, Flushing, N. Y.

Jerome McClain, 42, Middletown, Conn.

Martin Ridgeck, 43, New York.

Divers Called

In addition to state troopers, firemen and Hartford police, divers from the U. S. Navy submarine base at New London were at the scene searching among twisted girders in the river for the missing men.

The bridge collapsed as a 176-ton crane with a 100-foot boom was about to swing a heavy girder into place on the bridge's superstructure about 120 feet from the Hartford end.

At that point supporting the bridge was a false pier of piling, with movable jack columns to act as jacks. The pier was to support the structure until the girders had been riveted into place over the river to a concrete pier 272 feet from shore.

The huge girder had been carried onto the bridge on a track laid over girders already in place. With the workmen hovering about to connect the crane hook, the crane and bridge began to sway. Suddenly the bridge, false pier and crane all fell into the river, carrying with them the group of workmen. The Hartford end of the bridge was torn loose from its permanent concrete pier at the edge of the river.

With an ear-splitting crash, the girders fell. Bystanders summoned police and firemen who worked their way out on the fallen bridge wreckage to aid the injured struggling in the water. Other persons sped to the wreckage in small boats and picked up some of the injured.

Kiwanians Honor Grid Team, Hear Paul Brown At Monday Eve Banquet

All arrangements have been completed for the Kiwanis Club's annual football banquet to be conducted Monday evening in the banquet room of the Elk's Home. Kiwanians, their ladies, the football team, coaches and some invited guests will be present to hear an address by Coach Paul E. Brown of Ohio State University and to view movies of some of Ohio State's football games.

The banquet will begin at 6:30 o'clock, and admission will be by ticket only, the attendance being limited because of lack of available space.

For the last several years the Kiwanis Club has honored the high school football team and this year's event promises to be the outstanding one of the series.

Coach Brown was born in Norwalk in 1908. When he was in the sixth grade, his family moved to Massillon, and he went through high school there. Despite his slight stature, he became an outstanding athlete, winning letters in football, baseball, basketball and track.

After being graduated from high school at the age of 16, he entered Ohio State and was a member of the freshman football and baseball teams, but soon found that his 140 pounds were not enough for Western Conference competition.

Went To Miami

Consequently, he transferred to Miami University at Oxford, where he played quarterback in football and outfield in baseball for two seasons. At Miami he gained quite a reputation as a field general and a forward passer. He wound up his college career by throwing three touchdown passes to defeat Wittenberg.

After receiving his diploma at the age of 20 he entered the coaching field, accepting a position at Severn, a prep school for the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis.

He remained there through two very successful seasons, winning 15 games and losing but one. It was only natural that when Massillon High School authorities began looking for a new coach, they picked Paul Brown.

The very name of Massillon is nearly synonymous with football now, but the situation is a far cry from that when Paul Brown took over in 1932. The athletic physical plant and equipment was run down; spirit was low, and the team had been a loser for several seasons. He immediately launched the program which has made Massillon a by-word wherever football is played.

In 1932, his team won six, lost three, and tied one game. The next year it won eight of 10, and the third season, nine out of 10. In the following six seasons, Massillon was undefeated and untied five times, and lost one and tied one in the other year. His total record at Massillon was 81 victories, six defeats and two ties.

Stepping into the Ohio State picture in 1941, he was faced with the necessity of living up to an amazing quantity of publicity and public support which had preceded his appointment. Football spirit was at a low ebb following a disappointing season, and the material on hand was rather skimpy.

Season Fine One

Making no promises other than that Ohio State would have a well-drilled, fighting team, he went to work to install his system and style of play. The result was a very successful season which saw the Bucks score victories over Missouri, Southern California, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Wisconsin, and Illinois. They lost only to Northwestern and wound up the season in a blaze of glory by fighting a favored Michigan team to a great 20-20 tie.

Paul is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, which has no chapter at Ohio State. He is married and has two sons, Robin and Michael. Mrs. Brown will accompany the coach to Circleville.

Hanson Baldwin; and many others.

ASHVILLE

Frank Griffey, 87, and for many years a resident here is seriously sick at his home in north Ashville. . . Luther Cooper in Berger Hospital for several days with a finger infection, the result of a knife injury, is "gradually getting better", is the word from there. . . Francis Huber of here severely injured in an auto smashup at a Route 23 bridge North of Circleville a few weeks ago, undergoing repairs at Berger Hospital, is now at home and by the aid of crutches was down town Thursday visiting in the business section.

Some 60-foot, surplus, electric line poles are being converted into commercial building material at the local Joe Pobst saw mill and planer. They are white cedar and said to be of Oregon growth. Ray Plum, over along the Pickaway-Fairfield line is the owner of this splendid lumber, well seasoned and apparently of long lasting quality.

So near Christmas, Doctor Gardner told us he brought a real much alive baby, December 4, to the home of John and Mrs. Bond at Reese Station. The mother is the former Louise Musselman and a granddaughter to O. W. and Mrs. Musselman, Duvall.

A WPA, 16-piece orchestra of the Capital City will give an hour concert at the local school building at 1 o'clock. Monday December 22. Seasoned musicians compose this outfit and the school knowing ones tell us these boys "have the goods" worth hearing.

George Wellington, the all-around, fix-it-up man, is doing what it takes to shine up the former Messick homestead now owned by Mrs. Beatrice Schiff. Had Pettibone and Virgil Six are applying their workmanship on the interior of the dwelling and when through, it is to be a strictly modern one.

George Gardner in making a search through a bureau drawer out at the Gardner home; the other day, found a copy of one of "Steve's old papers" bearing date of January 14, 1905. It contains a couple of very interesting dog stories, of the "true bill" variety and which we'll be giving out with in the next few days.

Tonight at 7:30 the action begins! We mean, of course, the basketball contests between the Ashville Bronco and the Pickaway Pirate. No doubt the fur will literally fly tonight—if not in the reserve game, surely in the varsity game, for both teams are keyed for this one. Neither team has suffered defeat thus far and, naturally enough, neither club will go down to the first defeat without putting up a sterling struggle.

At the beginning of the season and during pre-season estimating, Pickaway was always mentioned as the team with the best chance of again repeating as the No. 1 of the county, but due to the very simple fact that AHS has bowled over four opponents and all but the Walnut boys with comparative ease, many fans are of the opinion that the pre-game estimating may prove to be a "dud". Any way you look at it, the Bronco have come along fast and to stop them on their own floor might prove to be big order for any team, even those big bad Pirates of Pickaway.

Better plan to come out and see this one—it may be the best game of the home stand. All the local boys are in good shape for the game and are ready to give an "all out" fight to retain possession of that top rung on the league ladder. Starting tonight may be Wilson, Foreman, Mahaffey, Neff and Nance. "Tick" Pettibone, a starter in the game at Williamsport, has been absent most of the week and is expected to see little service. But there are Counts and Myers along with Young, Millar and Messick to fill the gap if they are needed. Pickaway's lineup will contain the regular lineup with Miller and Immelt bearing the brunt of the attack.

LIBRARY BOARD PLANS MEETING TO AIR PROBLEM

Board of trustees of Circleville's library will meet Saturday morning to determine what action shall be taken to make continued operation of the library possible.

Since the county commissioners have refused to grant the library any financial assistance, library board members will have to pay their own heat, light and janitor bills. Assuming that expense probably will mean that the services of the county book truck will have to be suspended, library officials believe.

The meeting will be held at 11 a. m. in the trustees' room of the library.

Lewis Morrill, who becomes President of the University of Wyoming January 1. The undergraduates crowded into University chapel yesterday to honor Dr. Morrill and bid an official farewell. Dorothy McVitty, who last week won $1,000 in a nationally-broadcast song contest, sang "Aloha" at the request of Dr. Morrill, who has been at Ohio State for the last 22 years.

OPEN LETTERS

TO EVERY ONE

FOLK: The time of the year has arrived when hustle and excitement prevail in every home. Christmas, grandest of all holidays, is just around the corner and, despite conditions throughout the world, it promises to be a happy Yuletide season for every one of us. The usual warnings go forth to shop early in an effort to avoid the rush. And warnings also fill the air that stocks which are once depleted may not be completely filled again because of the shortage of goods available for merchants. Likewise, other appeals are made to help this cause or that cause at this time of the year when all are trying to find the proper toys for the children and the proper gifts for sister, brother, mother or dad. Circleville's firemen are doing a good job, as they have been for the last several years, in getting toys in a good state of repair for the city's more unfortunate youngsters. Every day firemen are working on toys of all sorts, mending broken parts and doing scores of other little jobs that accompany such an undertaking. The supply of toys is not large yet, and firemen are in need of more toys on which to work so that homes of all of the city's children may be made happy ones at Christmas time. The annual appeal of the Circleville Benevolent Association has been made, and contributions will start rolling into the Association's offices any time now. This Circleville organization has been operating many years in the interest of charities that are not handled by other aid organizations. Christmas baskets are sent out each year, and gifts are needed to ascertain that they are filled. There are other places and other causes to which contributions may be made, and I hope that every one in Circleville will do his part to assure every one else a happy holiday season.

CIRCUITEER.

TO POLICE AND FIREMEN

GENTLEMEN: Your service to the community was clearly brought out by your performances at the Circleville Oil Company fire Monday night. Every citizen of the city must admit that you did a splendid job of keeping the blaze under control, and that had the valves from the two 20,000 gallon tanks not been turned off, the fire probably would have burned all night. It might have spread or the tanks might have exploded. Special credit should go to Fire Chief Talmer Wise and to George Clifton who braved the flames to turn off the valves. Volunteer firemen, sheriff's officers and light company employees all risked their lives when they worked within a few yards of the flames. They likewise deserve credit.

CIRCUITEER.

TO THE MINISTERS

PASTORS: At your County Ministerial Association meeting you announced completion of a survey in the city and county schools which showed that only a small percentage of the boys and girls of the community attend church and Sunday school. Also at your meeting you voted to have a copy of the results of the survey sent to each local school superintendent. You previously reported that the reason you were making such a checkup was to secure information which you felt would be helpful in formulating a program to reduce crime and juvenile delinquency in the community. You should have the wholehearted acceptance by the community of your program. But one thing you must not remember is that your program is not finished with one survey. Are you asking yourselves "Why do these boys and girls not go to church or to Sunday School?" Some of you probably already have done that, for you have active young peoples' organizations in your churches. If you want the young people in your churches, you must plan a constructive program which will attract them.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIALS: You have a big problem on your hands, with finances gone and the outlook for a replenished treasury definitely dark at this time. But I am repeating a plea which I have heard many, many times in the last month or so: "Do something to get the patrol car back on the streets after night." There are some Circleville folk who realize the seriousness of a traffic situation, especially when motorists know they can whiz around corners, run through traffic lights, drive on the wrong side of the street, refuse to observe side street stop signs, and a score of other violations without being detected by watchful policemen. Circleville's patrolmen are doing the best job possible under prevailing circumstances, but they are being scored by some folk who believe they should be everywhere at one time, even though afoot. I believe that a mistake is made any time the cruiser is taken off the streets, whether for one reason or another, and the financial report turned in by Mayor Cady at the end of each month will prove this. It is false economy to jerk the cruiser when it is helping to put more money into the treasury than many folk would imagine. Please do something to control the city's traffic. The situation is serious.

HOW MUCH buying power have people got, anyway? The evidence is conflicting.

One theory is that we have an excess of it, that incomes are sky-hooting, and that presently we'll be buying so fast that we'll boost prices enormously and have inflation. In fact, there's an upward price tendency already. This school of thought's contention is that it's necessary to tax us like fury, taking away so much of our money that we won't have enough left to over-buy ourselves.

Up on Capitol Hill, however, you discover that practically every senator and representative has bushel baskets full of letters from his constituents, hollering, "We haven't got any of that alleged excess buying power and, if anybody else has, we're unacquainted with him. What little buying we're able to do wouldn't inflate a balloon the size of a thimble."

This makes our congressmen pretty thoughtful. They gather that higher taxation isn't going to be very popular and, if they vote for it, they may not be re-elected, come next November.

Such yowling is super-audible elsewhere than on Capitol Hill. It resounds also through all the halls of Washington's National Press club, which I infest considerably. And the press has its influence as well as constituents. I know very few newspapermen who feel that their buying power is excessive, and they're quite vocal on the subject.

I mention the National Press club particularly because, a few days ago, notwithstanding its members' poverty-stricken howling it furnished the higher taxations with an argument in favor of their program.

A SOCIAL EVENT

Periodically the club pulls off a banquet with the President as its guest of honor. It's an exceedingly classy occasion. Everybody appears in spike tails. His Excellency sits at the head of the main table. High-up officials swarm in the big auditorium dining room. Distinguished visitors from all over the country are present. Federal secret services lurk in every nook and corner. Finally the President makes a speech. It's an event of the first consequence. The demand for tickets is many, many times the size of the supply of 'em.

Well, one of these functions was slated recently. F. D. had accepted his invitation. It was announced when and where admission cards would be obtainable. Seventy-five cents per head is the normal price for a Press club feed and, even at that, a good many members generally say they can't stand the gaff, and economize on the affair by not attending.

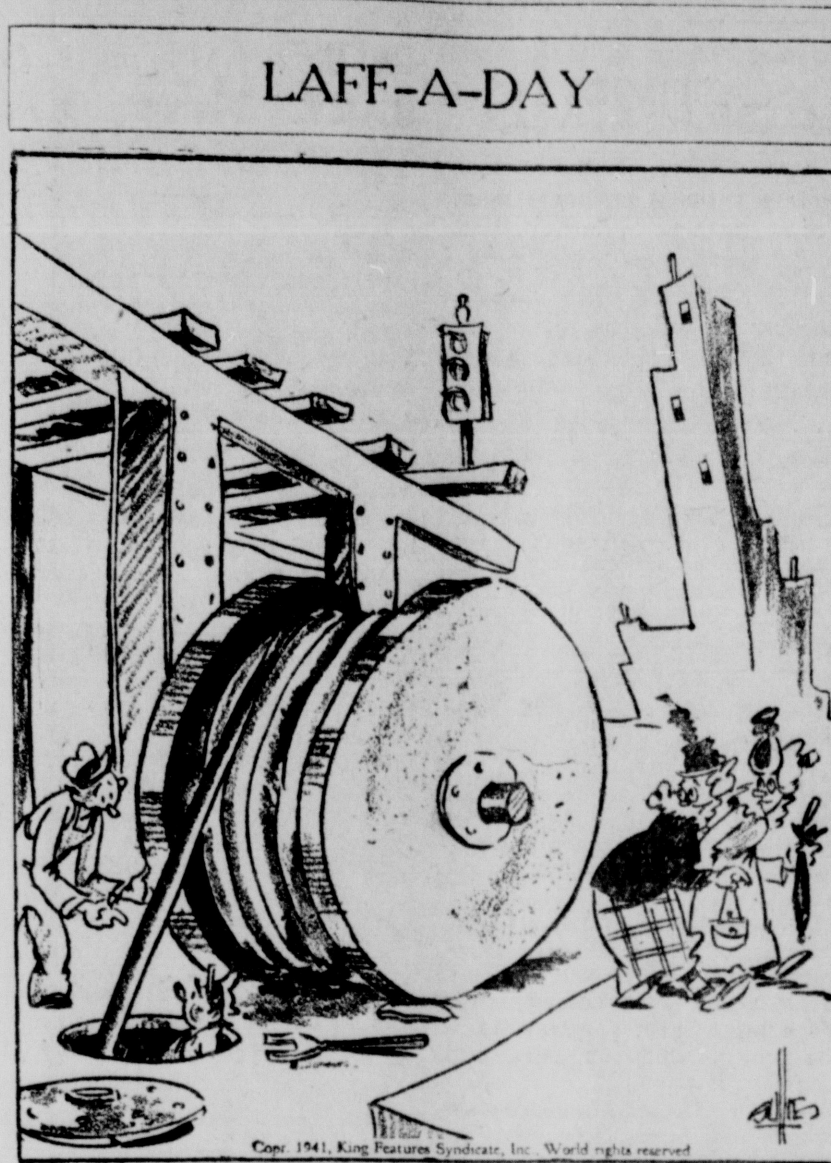

Three measly little 25-cent pieces though, manifestly weren't a financial circumstance in comparison with a blow-out of such importance as the one scheduled. The tariff was hiked to $6.50. The mob that turned up, after those tickets, was a record breaker. The club's at the top of a 15-story building plus an entresol and a basement. Its area's about a quarter of a city block. There are seven elevators. Yet you could scarcely get into and out of the clubrooms while the $6.50 ticket rush was on, on account of the demand for those pasteboards. Club members may be hard up for 75 cents occasionally, but they certainly were free enough with their $6.50's for that special banquet. And why not? They were going to dine with the President of the United States and then he was going to address 'em.

Only one flaw in the affair developed itself.

F. D. had a sinus that was bothering him so much that his doc told him he couldn't leave the White House at that juncture, and he wasn't present.

F.D.R. TO SING
He sent his deep regrets. He did get off a little talk from his bedroom, over the radio. He likewise promised to sing a song at the next reception in his honor.

Tuberculosis May Be Cured If Identified Early cause; we know the method of spread; we know the way to check the disease in the individual patient; we know how to cure the early case.

The difficulty is a social one and concerns the cooperation of the public in recognizing the disease and applying to a doctor for treatment.

This is not as simple a matter as it may seem. In the first place, tuberculosis is a very insidious disease. Symptoms are not dramatic in their approach, and at the onset tuberculosis seldom causes any pain.

People who have pain usually seek medical advice for relief, but tuberculosis causes no pain. It does not make itself known suddenly except in a very few instances. Therefore it may drag on for a long time, even when it is in an active state, before it is detected.

Early Symptoms
Symptoms that a young person has which indicate tuberculosis can be shrugged off. There is another reason which is the feeling, almost of disgrace, that some people have about tuberculosis. It is no disgrace to have tuberculosis, but many people feel that it is.

Now all of these things are obstacles; because it is easier to treat a case of tuberculosis in the early stages than after it has made some headway and much precious time is lost before the diagnosis can be made and treatment instituted. That is why the early symptoms should be known and why people should cooperate with the medical profession in submitting themselves to an examination when there are even slightly suspicious symptoms.

Tuberculosis usually starts in a young adult between twenty and thirty years of age. It has been there a long time, but that is the age when it begins to show itself. Perhaps the earliest symptom is severe fatigue—fatigue that is out of all proportion to the amount of exercise that has been taken.

Healthy fatigue is comfortable and it is also physiological, but the fatigue that the tuberculosis patient has has not been earned. It settles into every muscle of the body. This is the easiest symptom to shrug off. The victims say they are seedy, need exercise, ought to take a trip, when what they really ought to do is go to bed.

When this fatigue is accompanied by a little fever and flush in the afternoon, you have the second of the early symptoms—afternoon fever. It may be only 99 or 99½ degrees but that is enough to require investigation. The temperature should be recorded accurately for at least twelve days at regular times—8 A. M., 12 noon, 4 P. M., and 8 P. M.—before any decision is made that "the afternoon temperature does not mean anything."

The third early symptom is an unexplained cough. It may not be productive—that is it may not bring up anything—and it may hang on winter and summer for a long time.

If everyone who had any one of these symptoms or all of them would take the time and trouble to go to their doctor for a thorough investigation, many could be cured in the early stages which otherwise go on into the open adult case which is far more difficult to cope with.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. D. C.: "My son, who will be eighteen years old in November, has spells of nose bleed. Is this serious? Does it mean high blood pressure?"

Answer: At the age of eighteen it is very unlikely that high blood pressure is the cause. Nose bleed of this kind is usually due to local conditions in the nose, usually a scab that is covering an ulcerated area underneath. This can be relieved by local treatment.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

HAND IN hand Susan and Roy ran down the subway steps. And at about the same time their train was speeding toward Times Square, Mrs. Daniel Van Wert Jones was having a talk with Mr. Daniel Van Wert Jones.

They were in the Jones' swank apartment on upper Fifth avenue. "It was silly enough of you to call the girl by her first name, even before you met her," said Mrs. Jones. "But the way you keep calling her 'my dear' is even sillier."

"But listen, Aggie," said Mr. Jones, trying to get a word in. "You're making a mountain out of—"

"Not that it means anything to me if you want to make yourself ridiculous," the lady went on. "But I keep thinking about the other people who have to hear you being so familiar."

"Nobody but you," said Mr. Jones, "would think anything at all about the way I address Miss Farmer. Other people have sense enough to know that my interest in her is purely paternal. She's just a girl, and I feel like a father toward her."

"Piffle!" said Mrs. Jones. "You're sentimental and romantic where a pretty girl is concerned. You never felt a fatherly interest in a pretty girl in all your life. You moon over them, Daniel Van Wert—that's what you do!"

"How do you know?"

"Don't forget I've been married to you for over 20 years."

"Poppycock!" I could have felt a fatherly interest in a hundred girls before I married you, couldn't I?"

"I don't doubt that you knew a hundred girls," said Mrs. Jones. "But I do doubt your fatherly interest. You probably called them all 'my dear,' and wrote poems to their eyes."

"All right, all right," said Mr. Jones. "Suppose I did? Let's drop the subject. Keep quiet, will you, and let me get some sleep. I've got a heavy day before me."

"Let you sleep! How about me? Don't forget I've got to face the ordeal of a dinner at which there'll be those detestable Meyer twins."

"The dinner was your idea, not mine."

"But inviting the twins wasn't my idea. I have nightmares when I think of what they may say or do. And flirting with strangers in Pennsylvania station."

"Who was?"

"Rose and Lily Meyer, of course. Whom do you think I'm talking about?"

"Poppycock!"

"I saw them with my own eyes."

"You're always seeing things with your own eyes—and then exaggerating."

"Well, I'm not exaggerating now," Mrs. Jones retorted. "What's more, you'd better thank your stars you didn't discover the typical farmer boy instead of the typical farmer girl. If you had, and brought HIM to New York, either Rose or Lily probably would have kidnapped the poor boy before he could so much as step up in front of a microphone."

"Listen, Aggie," said Mr. Jones wearily. "WILL you turn over and go to sleep—and let me do likewise?"

"Very well, Daniel Van Wert," said Mrs. Jones. "But mind you, if those twins spoil my dinner, they'll never enter this house again—never. And another thing—"

"Ye gods!" groaned Mr. Jones. "What is it now?"

"And another thing," Mrs. Jones continued, "I don't like you calling Susan Farmer 'my dear'—I don't like it one little bit. Do I make myself quite clear, Daniel Van Wert?"

"Yes, Aggie, you do. And now suppose you make yourself quite silent as well."

Mr. Jones punched a pillow with his fist, and settled down to sleep.

The next afternoon, down in Ardendale, Fred Mosher parked his roadster in front of the Main Street Radio shop and went inside.

"Have you got Miss Alice Farmer's radio ready?" he asked Mr. Smithers, the manager.

"Yes, sir!" said Mr. Smithers. "She's as good as new."

"Fine!" said Fred. "Miss Alice would be mighty disappointed if it went dead on her tonight."

"It won't." The manager got a small, inexpensive radio from the counter and handed it to Fred. "It's sure a big right for everyone in Ardendale," he said. "Our Susan on the air! Gosh! all hemlock, Fred, she might even cause a boom down here. Anyway, the world is going to find out there's an Ardendale, all right."

"I suppose so," said Fred, without a great deal of enthusiasm. "I'll sure bet dollars to doughnuts you'll have your car glued to the radio," said Mr. Smithers, poking Fred in the ribs. "Knowing how you and Susan have been sweethearts for so long."

"Oh, I'll listen, of course," said Fred. "Only I'm not much for this business of girls getting so much publicity. I don't think it's good for them."

"I don't know about that," said Mr. Smithers thoughtfully. "Anyway, I reckon being in love with a girl who's turned famous is sort of exciting."

"She's not famous—yet."

"But she will be! Like as not, she'll get all sorts of offers—maybe a chance to go to Hollywood."

Fred frowned. He didn't want to think of such a possibility, let alone talk about it.

"What's the hill?" he asked. Mr. Smithers told him.

"And tell Miss Alice for me," he added, "that my trade-in offer still holds good."

"Okay," said Fred. And went out.

He drove rapidly, and soon was facing Miss Alice out in the flower garden where he had first asked Susan Farmer to marry him, and been turned down. "Gosh," he thought, "I sure can take it. Most fellows would have given up long ago." He turned away, so as not to see the garden that was so full of memories, and gave his attention to Miss Alice.

"The radio's fixed," he told her, "and I'll be out to listen in with you, if you'd like me to."

"Of course I would!" said Miss Alice. "I'd like having company, just in case—well, in case Susan forgets what she has to say, or something like that."

"I don't think," said Fred, "that Susan will forget. She's too darned much like that grandmother of hers."

"I tell you what do!" said Miss Alice brightly. "You come out and eat supper with me. The broadcast isn't until nine-thirty, so that'll give us plenty of time to eat and get all settled and ready to listen."

"Thanks, Miss Alice," Fred said. "I'll do that."

"And thank you for stopping to get the radio for me," said Miss Alice. "It was mighty sweet of you—and thoughtful."

"It was nothing," Fred hesitated a moment, and then he said: "Listen, Miss Alice, maybe you know Susan better than I do. Do you think she'll accept any offers made her, after she's made her broadcast and folk know all about how she won the prize?"

"What sort of offers, Fred?"

"To go on the stage—maybe—or out to Hollywood."

"Nonsense!"

"You mean you think she'd turn them down?"

"Of course," said Miss Alice. "At least she's always talked of living here on the plantation. That's why she was so eager to win the $5,000—so she could help me get it on a paying basis."

"Yes, I know," said Fred. "But girls can get their heads turned by success—or at least by adulation."

TO EVERY ONE

FOLK: The time of the year has arrived when hustle and excitement prevail in every home. Christmas, grandest of all holidays, is just around the corner and, despite conditions throughout the world, it promises to be a happy Yuletide season for every one of us. The usual warnings go forth to shop early in an effort to avoid the rush. And warnings also fill the air that stocks which are once depleted may not be completely filled again because of the shortage of goods available for merchants. Likewise, other appeals are made to help this cause or that cause at this time of the year when all are trying to find the proper toys for the children and the proper gifts for sister, brother, mother or dad. Circleville's firemen are doing a good job, as they have been for the last several years, in getting toys in a good state of repair for the city's more unfortunate youngsters. Every day firemen are working on toys of all sorts, mending broken parts and doing scores of other little jobs that accompany such an undertaking. The supply of toys is not large yet, and firemen are in need of more toys on which to work so that homes of all of the city's children may be made happy ones at Christmas time. The annual appeal of the Circleville Benevolent Association has been made, and contributions will start rolling into the Association's offices any time now. This Circleville organization has been operating many years in the interest of charities that are not handled by other aid organizations. Christmas baskets are sent out each year, and gifts are needed to ascertain that they are filled. There are other places and other causes to which contributions may be made, and I hope that every one in Circleville will do his part to assure every one else a happy holiday season.

CIRCUITEER.

TO POLICE AND FIREMEN

GENTLEMEN: Your service to the community was clearly brought out by your performances at the Circleville Oil Company fire Monday night. Every citizen of the city must admit that you did a splendid job of keeping the blaze under control, and that had the valves from the two 20,000 gallon tanks not been turned off, the fire probably would have burned all night. It might have spread or the tanks might have exploded. Special credit should go to Fire Chief Talmer Wise and to George Clifton who braved the flames to turn off the valves. Volunteer firemen, sheriff's officers and light company employees all risked their lives when they worked within a few yards of the flames. They likewise deserve credit.

CIRCUITEER.

TO THE MINISTERS

PASTORS: At your County Ministerial Association meeting you announced completion of a survey in the city and county schools which showed that only a small percentage of the boys and girls of the community attend church and Sunday school. Also at your meeting you voted to have a copy of the results of the survey sent to each local school superintendent. You previously reported that the reason you were making such a checkup was to secure information which you felt would be helpful in formulating a program to reduce crime and juvenile delinquency in the community. You should have the wholehearted acceptance by the community of your program. But one thing you must not remember is that your program is not finished with one survey. Are you asking yourselves "Why do these boys and girls not go to church or to Sunday School?" Some of you probably already have done that, for you have active young peoples' organizations in your churches. If you want the young people in your churches, you must plan a constructive program which will attract them.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIALS: You have a big problem on your hands, with finances gone and the outlook for a replenished treasury definitely dark at this time. But I am repeating a plea which I have heard many, many times in the last month or so: "Do something to get the patrol car back on the streets after night." There are some Circleville folk who realize the seriousness of a traffic situation, especially when motorists know they can whiz around corners, run through traffic lights, drive on the wrong side of the street, refuse to observe side street stop signs, and a score of other violations without being detected by watchful policemen. What the higher taxationers are saying is "That press gang can't be as free with their $6.50's—not to dine with the President. Their taxes ought to be boosted anyway, whether or not other folks' are."

It was a nice banquet, but it was a deflated one.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. D. C.: "My son, who will be eighteen years old in November, has spells of nose bleed. Is this serious? Does it mean high blood pressure?"

Answer: At the age of eighteen it is very unlikely that high blood pressure is the cause. Nose bleed of this kind is usually due to local conditions in the nose, usually a scab that is covering an ulcerated area underneath. This can be relieved by local treatment.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
HAND in hand Susan and Roy ran down the subway steps. And at about the same time their train was speeding toward Times Square, Mrs. Daniel Van Wert Jones was having a talk with Mr. Daniel Van Wert Jones.

They were in the Jones' swank apartment on upper Fifth avenue. "It was silly enough of you to call the girl by her first name, even before you met her," said Mrs. Jones. "But the way you keep calling her 'my dear' is even sillier."

"But listen, Aggie," said Mr. Jones, trying to get a word in. "You're making a mountain out of—"

"Not that it means anything to me if you want to make yourself ridiculous," the lady went on. "But I keep thinking about the other people who have to hear you being so familiar."

"Nobody but you," said Mr. Jones. "would think anything at all about the way I address Miss Farmer. Other people have sense enough to know that my interest in her is purely paternal. She's just a girl, and I feel like a father to ward her."

"But," said Mrs. Jones. "You're sentimental and romantic where a pretty girl is concerned. You never felt a fatherly interest in a pretty girl in all your life. You moon over them, Daniel Van Wert—that's what you do!"

"How do you know?"

"Don't forget I've been married to you for over 20 years." "Poppycock! I could have felt a fatherly interest in a hundred girls before I married you, couldn't I?"

"I don't doubt that you knew a hundred girls," said Mrs. Jones. "But I do doubt your fatherly interest. You probably called them all 'my dear,' and wrote poems to their eyes."

"All right, all right," said Mr. Jones. "Suppose I did? Let's drop the subject. Keep quiet, will you, and let me get some sleep. I've got a heavy day before me."

"Let you sleep! How about me? Don't forget I've got to face the ordeal of a dinner—at which there'll be those detestable Meyer twins."

"The dinner was your idea, not mine."

"But inviting the twins wasn't my idea. I have nightmares when I think of what they may say or do. And flirting with strangers in Pennsylvania station."

"Who was?"

"Rose and Lily Meyer, of course. Whom do you think I'm talking about?"

"Poppycock!"

"I saw them with my own eyes."

"You're always seeing things with your own eyes—and then exaggerating."

"Well, I'm not exaggerating now," Mrs. Jones retorted. "What's more, you'd better thank your stars you didn't discover the typical farmer boy instead of the typical farmer girl. If you had, and brought HIM to New York, either Rose or Lily probably would have kidnapped the poor boy before he could so much as step up in front of a microphone."

"Listen, Aggie," said Mr. Jones wearily. "WILL you turn over and go to sleep—and let me do likewise."

"Very well, Daniel Van Wert," said Mrs. Jones. "But, mind you, if those twins spoil my dinner, they'll never enter this house again—never. And another thing—"

"Ye gods!" groaned Mr. Jones. "What is it now?"

"And another thing," Mrs. Jones continued, "I don't like you calling Susan Farmer 'my dear'—I don't like it one little bit. Do I make myself quite clear, Daniel Van Wert?"

"Yes, Aggie, you do. And now suppose you make yourself quite silent as well."

Mr. Jones punched a pillow with his fist, and settled down to sleep.

The next afternoon, down in Ardendale, Fred Mosher parked his roadster in front of the Main Street Radio shop and went inside.

"Have you got Miss Alice Farmer's radio ready?" he asked Mr. Smithers, the manager.

"Yes, sir!" said Mr. Smithers. "She's as good as new."

"Fine!" said Fred. "Miss Alice would be mighty disappointed if it went dead on her tonight."

"It won't." The manager got a small, inexpensive radio from the counter and handed it to Fred. "It's sure a big night for everyone in Ardendale," he said. "Our Susan on the air! Gosh, all hemlock, Fred, you might even cause a boom down here. Anyway, the world is going to find out there's an Ardendale, all right."

"I suppose so," said Fred, without a great deal of enthusiasm.

"I'll sure bet dollars to doughnuts you'll have your ear glued to the radio," said Mr. Smithers, poking Fred in the ribs. "Knowing how you and Susan have been sweet-hearts for so long."

"Oh, I'll listen, of course," said Fred. "Only I'm not much for this business of girls getting so much publicity. I don't think it's good for them."

"I don't know about that," said Mr. Smithers thoughtfully. "Any way, I reckon being in love with a girl who's turned famous is sort of exciting."

"She's not famous—yet!"

"But she will be! Like as not, she'll get all sorts of offers—maybe a chance to go to Hollywood."

Fred frowned. He didn't want to think of such a possibility, let alone talk about it.

"What's the bill?" he asked. Mr. Smithers told him.

"And tell Miss Alice for me," he added, "that my trade-in offer still holds good."

"Okay," said Fred. And went out.

He drove rapidly, and soon was facing Miss Alice out in the flower garden where he had first asked Susan Farmer to marry him, and been turned down. "Gosh," he thought, "I sure can take it. Most fellows would have given up long ago." He turned away, so as not to see the garden that was so full of memories, and gave his attention to Miss Alice.

"The radio's fixed," he told her, "and I'll be out to listen in with you, if you'd like me to."

"Of course I would!" said Miss Alice. "I'd like having company, just in case—well, in case Susan forgets what she has to say, or something like that."

"I don't think," said Fred, "that Susan will forget. She's too darned much like that grandmother of hers."

"I tell you what do," said Miss Alice brightly. "You come out and eat supper with me. The broadcast isn't until nine-thirty, so that'll give us plenty of time to eat and get all settled and ready to listen."

"Thanks, Miss Alice," Fred said. "I'll do that."

"And thank you for stopping to get the radio for me," said Miss Alice. "It was mighty sweet of you—and thoughtful."

"It was nothing—," Fred hesitated a moment, and then he said: "Listen, Miss Alice, maybe you know Susan better than I do. Do you think she'll accept any offers made her, after she's made her broadcast and folk know all about how she won the prize?"

"What sort of offers, Fred?"

"To go on the stage—maybe—or out to Hollywood."

"Nonsense!"

"You mean you think she'd turn them down?"

"Of course," said Miss Alice. "At least she's always talked of living here on the plantation. That's why she was so eager to win the $5,000—so's she could help me get it on a paying basis."

"Yes, I know," said Fred. "But girls can get their heads turned by success—or at least by adulation."

Dr. Harlan Hatcher On Rotary Club's Program

'Poetry And Human Heart' Topic Of Discussion

"Poetry and the Human Heart" was the theme of the talk by Dr. Harlan Hatcher of the English Department of Ohio State University, at the annual Rotary-Ann party of the Rotarians, Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms. Dr. Hatcher is also a lecturer and author of note, his most recent work being "The Buckeye Country".

Ninety-two reservations were made for the outstanding social affair, the guests including the Rotarians and Rotary-Anns, and in addition, the ladies of the Circleville Papyrus Club.

Beginning at 6:15 p. m., the Zella Roberts trio played soft music as the guests assembled and throughout the dinner hour. The instruments of the Columbus musicians were the harp, the cello and the violin.

Large bowls of chrysanthemums of various types and in pastel colors, centered the tables which were lighted with tall yellow candles in crystal holders.

Favors of rose buds were presented each lady by Rotarian Robert L. Brehmer, and chosen by lot at the close of the party, the large bouquets were given Mrs. E. A. Cayce, Miss Katherine Foreman, Mrs. Andrew Thomas, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. Karl Herrmann and Mrs. Charles Gilmore.

Seated at the speakers table were the officers of Rotary including President Harry Heffner and Mrs. Heffner; Ex-Governor and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger; Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hill and Frank Fischer.

Though dress was optional, a formal note prevailed the party. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey pronounced the invocation.

Dr. Hatcher in his talk stressed the value of poetry as an escape from "a world which is too much with us" and defined poetry as "a way of feeling about things", a poet being one who can put into words those emotional experiences felt but not expressed by the average person. Dr. Hatcher quoted and read from the works of many famous American and English poets, including Robert Frost, William Wordsworth, William Shakespeare, Robert Browning, John Milton, Samuel Johnson, Alfred Tennyson and others. His manner of delivery was sincere and pleasing, and he held the attention of his audience to a marked degree.

During the evening, President Heffner announced the institute of International Understanding which the Circleville Rotary Club is sponsoring in January and February.

Responsible for the success of the annual affair were Mr. Fischer, chairman; Herman Hill, the Rev. Mr. Kelsey, C. Dee Early and Dr. A. D. Blackburn.

U. B. Missionary Society
The Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Brethren Church was held Thursday in the community house. The room was beautifully decorated with holiday colors of red and green, a glittering Christmas tree, bright with many lights, centering the study table.

With Mrs. John Kerns in the chair, a brief business session followed the opening carol and prayer.

"Christmas and the Home" was subject of the program arranged by Mrs. Edward Milliron.

Miss Nelle Denman read an old hymn from a hymnal published in 1871 which had belonged to her mother. It was entitled, "The Excellence of the House of the Lord."

Scripture ideals of home from the Old and New Testaments were presented by Mrs. John Stevenson and Miss Blanche Ryan. A solo, "Love Divine," by Mrs. Frank Hawkes, preceded a talk by Mrs. Ralph Long on "The Christian Home, a Sanctuary." It was based on a paper written by J. Gordon Howard, United Brethren Denominational Leader of Young People, and was divided into five parts, for the aged, the middle aged, the

W. S. C. S.
An excellent group of members of the W. S. C. About 85 members and guests were entertained at the luncheon arranged by Circle 4, Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, chairman.

Mrs. G. H. Adkins conducted the opening business meeting when the group accepted the recommendation of the executive committee that its time of meeting be changed to 12 o'clock with the W. S. C. S. meeting to be at 1 p. m.

It was decided that the enrollment of the circles would not be changed for another year, and that each would conduct its own election of officers.

A donation was received from the Wesleyan Bible Class to be used to help purchase a new rug for the church parlor. Those named to select the rug included: Mrs. Rader, Mrs. Charles Stoffer, and Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer.

The devotionals were in charge of Mrs. O. C. King who used "One Great Fellowship of Love" as told in the Christmas story for her topic.

Mrs. Helen M. Sprouse sang "The Manger Lullaby" with Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh as her piano accompanist. Mrs. Reichelderfer reviewed the chapter in the study book, "Christian Roots in Democracy", "Youth Prays for Peace", a poem, was read by Mrs. Lilly as the closing number of the program.

The next meeting of the society will be Thursday, January 8, as the regular date comes on New Year's Day.

Mrs. Haysa Dill read the Christian message and Mrs. Arthur Sark, the scripture lesson. "O Prince of Life" was the Christmas poem read by Mrs. Will Seethorn. Mrs. Martin Cromley played "The Bells of St. Mary's" as a prelude to a talk on "Bells" by Mrs. Wayne Hines. Following the talk, Mrs. Cromley played several hymns resembling Christmas.

A lighted Christmas tree, poinsettias and candles decorated the room, making an attractive background for the exchange of gifts and for the refreshments served by the hostesses including Mrs. Homer Quillen, Mrs. John Lanman, Mrs. Julia Weaver, Mrs. Homer Reber, Miss Ann Reber and Mrs. Ralph Dunkel.

Dr. Harlan Hatcher On Rotary Club's Program

Poetry And Human Heart' Topic Of Discussion

"Poetry and the Human Heart" was the theme of the talk by Dr. Harlan Hatcher of the English Department of Ohio State University, at the annual Rotary-Ann party of the Rotarians, Thursday, at the Pickaway Arms. Dr. Hatcher is also a lecturer and author of note, his most recent work being "The Buckeye Country".

Ninety-two reservations were made for the outstanding social affair, the guests including the Rotarians and Rotary-Anns, and in addition, the ladies of the Circleville Papyrus Club.

Beginning at 6:15 p. m., the Zella Roberts trio played soft music as the guests assembled and throughout the dinner hour. The instruments of the Columbus musicians were the harp, the cello and the violin.

Large bowls of chrysanthemums of various types and in pastel colors, centered the tables which were lighted with tall yellow candles in crystal holders.

Favors of rose buds were presented each lady by Rotarian Robert L. Brehmer, and chosen by lot at the close of the party.

The large bouquets were given Mrs. E. A. Cayce, Miss Katherine Foreman, Mrs. Andrew Thomas, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. Karl Herrmann and Mrs. Charles Gilmore.

Seated at the speakers table were the officers of Rotary including President Harry Heffner and Mrs. Heffner; Ex-Governor and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger; Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hill and Frank Fischer.

Though dress was optional, a formal note prevailed the party. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey pronounced the invocation.

Dr. Hatcher in his talk stressed the value of poetry as an escape from "a world which is too much with us" and defined poetry as "a way of feeling about things", a poet being one who can put into words those emotional experiences felt but not expressed by the average person.

Dr. Hatcher quoted and read from the works of many famous American and English poets including Robert Frost, William Wordsworth, William Shakespeare, Robert Browning, John Milton, Samuel Johnson, Alfred Tennyson and others. His manner of delivery was sincere and pleasing, and he held the attention of his audience to a marked degree.

During the evening, President Heffner announced the institute of International Understanding which the Circleville Rotary Club is sponsoring in January and February.

Responsible for the success of the annual affair were Mr. Fischer, chairman; Herman Hill, the Rev. Mr. Kelsey, C. Dee Early and Dr. A. D. Blackburn.

C. B. Missionary Society

With Mrs. John Kerns in the chair, a brief business session followed the opening carol and prayer.

"Christmas and the Home" was subject of the program arranged by Mrs. Edward Milliron.

Miss Nellie Denman read an old hymn from a hymnal published in 1871 which had belonged to her mother. It was entitled, "The Excellence of the House of the Lord."

Scripture ideals of home from the Old and New Testaments were presented by Mrs. John Stevenson and Miss Blanche Ryan. A solo, "Love Divine," by Mrs. Frank Hawkes, preceded a talk by Mrs. Ralph Long on "The Christian Home, a Sanctuary." It was based on a paper written by J. Gordon Howard, United Brethren Denominational Leader of Young People, and was divided into five parts, for the aged, the middle aged, the

THREE FIRE COMPANIES FIGHT SEDALIA FLAMES

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the two-story, 50-year-old Midway Centralized School at Sedalia, in southern Madison County, and for a time threatened the entire community.

Fire departments of London, Mt. Sterling and West Jefferson aided in the battle against the blaze. An auditorium built four years ago was saved by pumping water on it from nearby cisterns. About 150 children attend the school.

Columbus Driver Named In Manslaughter Case

Dr. Edward Schumacher To Face Court In Traffic Death Of Woman

JOSEPH PORTER CLEARED

Grand Jurors Find Shooting Of Man Found In Hen House Justified

Dr. Edward Schumacher of Columbus was indicted by the Pickaway County grand jury Thursday for second-degree manslaughter and will stand trial for the death of Mrs. Gladys Rhoades, 36, Red House, W. Va.

The case against the Columbus doctor developed from an automobile collision on Route 23 north of Circleville last July 4 in which Mrs. Rhoades was killed and three other persons were sent to Berger Hospital with injuries.

Since manslaughter charges were filed, Schumacher has been free under $1,000 bond. Mrs. June Duty of Ironton was indicted on a charge of cutting with intent to wound, her case originating from a cutting episode along Route 23 north of the city.

The grand jury exonerated Joseph Porter, Saltcreek Township farmer, of any blame for the death of Henry Erwin, 38, Wellston, whom Porter killed as the Wellston man fled from his chicken house, September 5. The case was brought before the grand jury on the request of Porter, himself, and the jury reported that Porter was fully justified in shooting the Wellston man. Investigation following Erwin's death revealed that he had been connected with chicken thefts elsewhere and was wanted by a number of law officers in southern Ohio. Porter shot Erwin after he had ordered the fleeing man to stop.

Perry Heskett, Williamsport, was indicted on a charge of assault to rape; John Rockwell of New Holland was named on a charge of breaking and entering, and Robert Reynolds of Circleville on a charge of auto larceny.

Two other indictments, both secret, were reported by the jury. During its two-day session, the jury investigated 17 cases and heard testimony of 38 witnesses. It ignored ten cases.

Reporting on their inspection of the county jail, jurors congratulated Sheriff and Mrs. Charles Radcliff on the conditions they found in the jail and in the kitchen.

Foreman was F. A. Beatty of Muhlenberg Township. Other jurors were Flo Hook, Walnut Township; Elizabeth Drumm, Circleville; Dorothy Walters, Monroe Township; Sarah Reed, Scioto Township; George Shook, Jackson Township; Gray Herbert, Wayne Township; E. B. Hay, Madison Township; Stella Griner, Circleville; Harold Horn, Saltcreek Township; Emery Reay, Darby Township; Fred Mitchell, Monroe Township; Elizabeth Hoffman, Wayne Township; Mary Shortridge, Jackson Township and Eli Roper, Circleville.

Arraignment probably will be Monday, Common Pleas Judge Meeker Terwilliger said.

TWO YEARS PUT ON TERMS FOR OHIO CONVICTS

LONDON, Dec. 5—For two hours of freedom—two years in prison.

That was the story today behind the escape attempt of William Fernald, 27, Fayette County bank robber, and Ernest Taylor, 27, Highland County burglar, who attempted to flee from a work gang at the London Prison Farm.

They were captured less than two hours after they fled in a barn about two miles from the prison, where they cowered in a hayrack as guards found them. They will be required to serve two years extra time for the escape attempt.

Fernald entered the penitentiary in 1931 for participation in the January 27, 1931 robbery of the Washington, C. H. National Bank, in which more than $3,000 was taken.

ODD FACT

A hand-made braided rug should be soft under foot, yet heavy enough to lie flat on the floor; it should be made with close, strong braids and stitches which do not leave open places to catch heels and furniture legs; it should contain colors that harmonize with those in the room, and it should be made of durable materials to stand hard wear.

Beef cubes are by no means a new invention. Back in the eighteenth century they were being used by travellers, who used to carry small pieces of veal glue which they dissolved in a bowl of hot water and made soup.

F. B. I. TO STUDY BIG EXPLOSION AT ELECTRIC PLANT

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5—The possibility of sabotage in an explosion of 48 fuel gas cylinders which wrecked part of the Cleveland Wire Works plant of the General Electric Co., today brought an investigation by FBI agents.

The explosion occurred about a minute before 400 men and women employees were to return to work from lunch yesterday. The blast caused nearly 512,000 damage, company officials said, tearing a six-foot hole in the rear of the main building and sending pieces of metal flying as far as a quarter of a mile.

Girders and framework of the building were twisted and all windows were blown out. Only one employee, Robert Keefer, was injured when a cylinder valve tore through the side of the building and struck him on the foot.

Columbus reported a new high for the date of 64, breaking the old 1916 mark of 60. Cincinnati's high was 63, equaling the 1916 mark.

Youngstown's 68 also broke a 1916 high of 66, while a 68-degree reading at Akron was four degrees warmer than the old 1909 high. Dayton reached an all-time peak of 62, and Toledo established two new highs: 62 degrees downtown and 65 at the airport bureau.

The forecast today:

"Mostly cloudy and mild, becoming colder in west portion this afternoon. Showers in northwest portion; mostly cloudy with showers in northeast portion. Saturday partly cloudy and colder, with strong winds shifting from west to northwest in the afternoon."

FATE OF LABOR CONTROL ACTION UP TO F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—With organized labor rallying for a bitter battle against anti-strike legislation, Sen. Tydings, (D) Md., declared today that President Roosevelt holds the fate of labor measures in his hands.

"If the President is quiescent some sort of legislation along the lines of the House bill may be passed," said Tydings. "If the President is for it there is no question. If he opposes legislation, passage is doubtful."

The declaration was made as informed Senate sources said that Mr. Roosevelt has indicated strongly to leaders that he favors legislation to aid in halting strikes.

While Mr. Roosevelt, it was indicated, will not favor a special bill, he has suggested a study of the drastic Canadian system, and is favorably inclined toward compulsory arbitration.

"The situation is that it is hard to get a bill passed over the President's opposition," Tydings said. "The President's position and power, particularly at this time, is such that he more than anyone else can influence labor legislation. This is especially true because he has been a champion of labor."

On the Southern Front, vengeance-seeking Red armies pounded again at the retreating German forces falling back from the port of Taganrog toward Mariupol.

Simultaneously, the Communist newspaper Pravda reported, the Soviets unleashed sudden counterattacks in the directions of Klin, Volokolamsk and Tula on the semi-circular front defending Moscow.

Klin and Volokolamsk are northwest of Moscow while Tula is an important arms manufacturing city 110 miles to the south.

Tremendous but so far inconclusive battles raged unchecked along the rigors of winter on the Moscow battle line.

Pravda said the Russian operations at Klin are "developing successfully."

The paper added that nine enemy divisions have been concentrated in the Volokolamsk region northwest of Moscow and outside Leningrad. Russia's second city at the northern extremity of the main front.

It added that the situation on the northern sector had "generally improved" but that tension at Leningrad and also at Moshaisk, due west of Moscow, has "not decreased."

destroyed a large number of motor transport vehicles.

At present, it was stated, "there doesn't appear to be any emergency south of the Capuzzo Road."

Authorities added there was no confirmation of reports the Germans are digging in around the Tobruk area, but they said this would be a natural step.

A heavy R.A.F. blitz attack on German tanks and motorized vehicles of Gen. Erwin Rommel's Afrikaerps massed around the Tobruk front in Libya was reported in advices to London today.

In addition, intensified British patrols on the western desert fighting fronts were described as the prelude to an impending major clash in Libya after the recent lull.

The British command, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, was reported to be speeding up his last-minute moves and reforming the British imperial forces before "going over the top."

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—Four maimed, though cheerful seamen, survivors of the torpedoed Belgian freighter Ville De Liege, were being taken on a tour of New York City today as guests of the British American Ambulance Corps.

The seamen—they have only one leg among them—drifted for 13 days on the North Atlantic before they were picked up by a British warship. Amputations of their legs were necessitated by exposure.

The men are Alexander Novaro, 23, an American oiler from New York; Frank Crowther, 29, a Canadian farmer; Ernest Eifred, 45, an English cook and Erik Hillers, 27, a Danish electrician.

It was stated authoritatively that the United States has been kept informed in meticulous detail on all steps taken by Britain in its diplomatic efforts to aid Russia through attempted severance of Finland, Hungary and Romania from the Nazi influence.

Bulgaria was expected as a recipient of the note because Bulgaria is not now in a state of war with Russia, although she admittedly is at war with Nazi-subjugated Yugoslavia and Greece.

The notes represent the final British effort to stabilize relations with the powers concerned.

However, official quarters insisted that the notes did not constitute or represent ultimatums since, while they called for a reply within a stated time, they merely placed on record the warning that if no replies are forthcoming the "new phase" would thereupon be opened.

COLGATE YOUTH MISSING SINCE VACATION DATE

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 5—Search was extended today for Michael Vincent Joseph Wolfe, 18-year-old Colgate University freshman, who has been missing since returning to school for only a few hours on November 24 after spending the Thanksgiving holidays at his Tamaqua, Pa., home.

Dr. Carl A. Kallgren, dean of students, said New York and Pennsylvania police have been searching for the youth, who was described as an excellent student.

Hamilton police said college officials had received information from Wolfe's parents suggesting that possibly he had gone to Atlantic City, where he worked last summer.

Wolfe was described as being six feet tall, weighing 170 pounds and having blue eyes and brown hair.

Answer To Hull's Note Handed To Washington Authorities

Secretary of State Cordell Hull at 11 a. m., by Japanese Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura and Saburo Kurusu, special Nippon envoy.

The reply is understood to have made the following two points: 1. That Japan, in increasing its forces in Indo-China, has not transgressed in any way on the stipulations of the Franco-Japanese protocol for the joint defense of Indo-China.

2. That the Japanese forces which are being concentrated in Indo-China in accordance with terms of the protocol are intended as a precautionary measure to protect that territory from the danger of Chinese forces which are being massed in neighboring Yunnan province.

The Japanese envoys made it plain to Secretary Hull that the Vichy government of France fully approves the military measures which Japan is taking in Indo-China.

Ambassador Nomura also explained that the Japanese troop movements in Indo-China represented the moving of military forces from the southern areas up north in the direction of Yunnan province.

Both envoys sought to make it plain that the Japanese military operation in Indo-China did not constitute a menace to Thailand. They furthermore expressed the belief that reports concerning the number of Japanese troops in that French possession have been exaggerated.
